For the Love of Web-based Reporting, Windward Launches New Version of Windward Javelin

Valentine's Day Release Celebrates "Sweet" Software Installation

February 14, 2013

Boulder, CO – Windward, the champion of reporting, document generation and business intelligence solutions, has announced the release of web-based reporting software Windward Javelin 11.1.43. The platform-agnostic report generator works with the Microsoft Office template design tool s AutoTag and AutoQuery to deliver powerful and cloud reporting solutions.

The latest version of Windward Javelin features a host of enhancements, many of which were designed to shorten the implementation process. The improvements include a revamped installer, a new licensing check system, and installation videos that play in embedded browsers.

"We want to help our customers get up and running as quickly as possible, so we created a web installer that reduces the install time to one eighth of the previous time," said David Thielen, CTO and founder of Windward. "Our lightning-fast installer downloads only what is needed and has a much smaller file size."

The Windward Javelin report generator is installed on a company's server and allows for access and control from any application – regardless of programming language. Key benefits include broad data access – employees and customers from across an organization and beyond can obtain up-to-the-minute reports from multiple locations – and pooled resources that enable companies to deploy reporting while making the most of an existing system setup. It also includes an automated scheduler so users can schedule reports to be created and run automatically.

The Javelin REST API is used to interact with a Windward Javelin server, giving businesses an easy way to access Windward reporting capabilities. The API is based on HTTP and uses a resource-oriented architecture; operations are performed on objects called resources such as a User or Template.

For more information, visit the Windward Javelin website.

About Windward
Windward delivers powerful reporting, document generation and business intelligence software solutions for enterprise or OEM use. Businesses worldwide create custom reports better and faster with data intelligence made easy. Windward has been delighting customers – technical and non – since 2004. www.windward.net

Press Contact:
Annette Grotz, Marketing Manager
303-499-2544 x1191

annetteg@windward.net